

Stall Talk

March 2006

lib.virginia.edu/press/stalltalk

Testing

Lost? Need a study break? Check out the Library Lab, now featuring beta versions of the improved online catalog, the homepage redesign, and a new Library map. Take a look, see what you think, and let us know. lib.virginia.edu/lab

Virginia Festival of the Book

The Festival of the Book is back from March 22-26, and the Library is hosting some events again this year. Information on times, dates, and locations is available at lib.virginia.edu/librarynews.html.

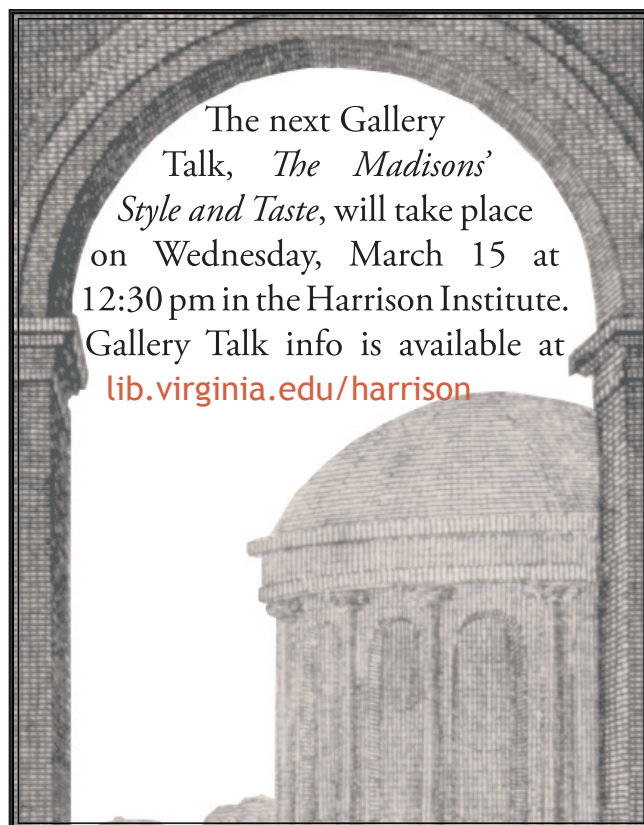

- Picturing Nature, Understanding Conservation: Hotspots Revisited
- The Map That Named America: Cartography
- Graduate Student Forum
- Little Nemo in Comicsland
- Women's Center Panel: Reclaiming Desire
- Scholarly Publishing in the Popular Realm: Merging Academic and "Big Bookstore" Publishing Dreams

Spiegelman, %@?*

Art Spiegelman, the graphic novelist perhaps best known for his Maus books, will be the focus of a new exhibit this month. The exhibit, which will be located in the first floor gallery of the Small Special Collections Library, opens just in time for the Book Festival on March 23 and will run through the summer. (And stay tuned for the Gallery Talk in April!)

Computer Clinics

If your computer is experiencing malaise, be sure to visit one of the ITC computer clinics in Alderman, Brown and Clemons this semester. Learn how to configure your laptop, resolve software issues, or access a printer. Hours are Sunday through Thursday from 10 am until midnight (10 pm in Alderman) and Friday from 10 am to 4 pm.

The next Gallery Talk, The Madisons' Style and Taste, will take place on Wednesday, March 15 at 12:30 pm in the Harrison Institute. Gallery Talk info is available at lib.virginia.edu/harrison

* Douglas Adams, born March 11, 1952