

Stall Talk

May/June 2006

lib.virginia.edu/press/stalltalk

The Library Lab

Throwing the Switch

The updated version of VIRGO, the online Library catalog, will go live on Monday, May 15th.

Of course, it is very likely that your mind will be far, far away by May 15th, but in the meantime you can check out the improved VIRGO (and offer some suggestions) at lib.virginia.edu/lab.

The birds are singing, the sun is out – it must be that time of year again (hurrah!)

If you're feeling a bit overwhelmed lately, don't forget that you can turn materials in at any library.

Also, the Library will post summer hours on the website as we head into even warmer weather.

www.lib.virginia.edu/hours

* Maurice Sendak, born June 10, 1928.

Congratulations Class of 2006!

Need Something To Do?

If family and friends are in town for a spell, send them to the Library. We've got oodles of great exhibits: faculty art, Art Spiegelman, botanical prints, history, some extremely nice furniture, and, of course, the Declaration of Independence. And don't forget the nice air-conditioned galleries. A full list of exhibits is available at www.lib.virginia.edu/librarynews.html.

